Short description:	The Polytechnic University of Madrid (UPM) is the oldest and largest technical university in Spain. It consists of twenty schools plus two faculties covering most engineering disciplines, as well as Architecture and Sports Science. UPM has over 3,000 faculty members, around 38,000 undergraduate students and around 8,000 doctoral and graduate students. Approximately 5,000 students graduate each year. The main objectives of the University are higher education and research. To achieve these objectives, schools and faculties are involved in teaching, while research groups (201), specialised technical centres (10) and university institutes (6) are involved in research. UPM enjoys a high level of participation in EU-funded projects In fact, it has had the largest participation among European universities in FP4, FP5 and FP6. In particular, the University carried out more than 210 R&D projects under FP6 (2003-07), making it the first Spanish university in terms of the number of projects awarded. As for FP7 (2009-2013), so far the UPM has been awarded 122 R & D projects, which has led UPM to first place among Spanish universities
